In addition to FAMU's efforts, broader opportunities are emerging for HBCU and members significant $500,000 grant to the Thurgood Marshall College Fund, specifically aimed at providing scholarships for students involved in band programs at Historically Black Colleges and Universities (HBCUs). This grant highlights Honda's longstanding commitment to HBCUs, having positively affected over 300,000 students and distributing more than $14 million in grants for educational programs.

This scholarship program aims to award up to $10,000 in need-based financial aid to eligible band students for the upcoming academic year, proving that support for these talented individuals is branching out beyond the campus and into the wider community. As the application process progresses, these opportunities stand to make a considerable impact on students who are dedicated to their musical pursuits.

As we look toward the future, its critical for FAMU and its supporters to unite in safeguarding the resources that allow the Marching 100 to thrive. Every note played by the band carries with it not just a talent, but a legacy that deserves to be upheld and celebrated.
